Westvaco employee Cynthia Thomas surveys some of the paper products that help make the ton of paper annually used by the average American family.

Your Family Used A Lot Of Paper Last Year

In 1900 the average American used 60 pounds of paper a year. Today we use about 600 pounds apiece. At that rate of consumption it takes only a family of 3.5 people to use over a ton of paper each year.

There are over 100,000 uses for paper products from greeting cards to auto oil filters and from housing insulation to facial tissue. And the uses are expected to grow. By 2000 each American will be using 1,000 pounds of paper per year.

Actually the increase makes environmental sense. Forests are renewable. The product, once used, is burnable, recyclable, and biodegradable. Also one-fourth of our paper products are made from the waste from manufacturing other wood products.

Increased Earnings Announced By Fidelity American

Lynchburg, Va....Alvin R. Clements, President of Fidelity American Bankshares, Inc., revealed unaudited first quarter 1977 corporate earnings figures which show improvements over corresponding results for 1976.

Net operating income for the first three months of 1977 was $1.318 million, up from $1.164 million for the same period of the previous year. On a per share basis, this represents a 15.6% increase from $0.45 to $0.52. Net income rose from $1.398 million or $0.55 per share in the first quarter of 1976 to $1.546 million or $0.61 per share for the first three months of this year. These gains were primarily due to substantial increases in loan voulum during the first quarter of 1977.

Through a provision for possible loan losses of $600 thousand, the company increased its valuation reserve to $5.5 million or 1.04% of net loans at the end of the first quarter of 1977, up 9.0% from the preceding quarter. An ongoing program of systematic loan review and analysis has served to diminish net loan charge-offs to $146 thousand for the first quarter of 1977.

Health-wise

Home Safety

Deaths from accidents in many areas of the world are exceeded only by deaths from cardiac disease and cancer. Many of these accidents happen at home.

Awareness of dangers in the home and recommendations for safety instructions are everyone's responsibility Householders should try to make their own home as free from hazards as possible.

Injuries associated with falls are high on the accident list. Prevention?

1. Have a secure handrail on all stairs.
2. Make sure stairs are well lighted.
3. Keep stairs clear of all obstructions.
4. Observe proper design of basement stairs. They should not be too steep but should have a moderate slope.
5. Mend all dress hems and cuffs of pants. Hems or pants cuffs that sag can cause one to trip.
6. Be selective in the use of floor polish. Floors should not be so highly polished that they are slippery.
7. Avoid scatter rugs that do not have nonskid pads under them.
8. Use nonslip pads in the bathtub and a nearby safety rail helps prevent skidding when the feet are wet.

Safety precautions are especially important when a person is over 65. Elderly people may lose their balance, have poor vision. More common-sense safety tips are: Don't stand when you feel faint or dizzy. Tape all electric extension cords to the wall to keep from tripping over them. Wear shoes with rubber soles.

Many fires are started each year by the careless use of matches, and smoking in bed results in many deaths each year. Every home should have a fire extinguisher.

Drug poisoning in adults often results from the theory that if one pill is good, many must be better! Medications from your doctor are prescribed according to your own particular need. Follow carefully the physician's instructions on the label. If you are under a physician's care, do not take any medication, not even the nonprescription type, without telling him.

Everyone needs to take the time and effort to study the conditions in his own home, to reduce the toll of accidents.
